

A University in Singapore Uses ACTi IP Surveillance Products to Improve Safety on Campus

ACTi empowers Nextan, a system integrator in Singapore, to successfully install the security system for an university in Singapore.

The security system in the university composes of 25 units of ACTi CAM-5100HP and its 16-Channel Streaming Activator. To secure the safety of a large campus, the IP surveillance system is more cost-effective compared to a CCTV system. In a campus this size, building up a surveillance system with coaxial cables is very expensive. The university decided to use their existing IP network infrastructure to build up the security system.

ACTi products offer excellent video quality and easily-controlled software. Most importantly, it realized real-time remote monitoring and management and IP surveillance as a convenient and reliable system to secure the safety of campus. Creating a security system would have cost the school significant sum of money. ACTi's IP surveillance helps save the cost for coaxial cabling construction and it offers real-time and reliable remote monitoring system. Therefore, ACTi is the best choice of offering IP Surveillance System.

“ACTi's IP Camera is an excellent product and the offering of free-bundled software is very helpful for our projects” says Sean Tan, Sales Director of Nextan.
